

Agenda for ACS on Campus at Argonne National Lab

RSVP For a chance to win $75

Join ACS Publications for a day of seminars and training on scholarly publishing, web tools, and careers. Events are FREE and open to the public but RSVP IS REQUIRED. Non-US citizens must RSVP by July 7th. Visit pubs.acs.org/r/acsoc to register.

Thursday July, 28 2011: Bldg 240, Use TCS Conference Center Entrance

9:30-10:45

ACS Online: How to Make the Web Work for You

Join ACS Publications and Chemical Abstracts Service for tutorials on SciFinder®, the ACS Web Editions Platform, and the ACS Network. Learn about new features and functionalities of all three tools to enhance your online research experience.

11:00-12:15

Basics and Ethics of Scholarly Publishing

Did you know there's such a thing as self-plagiarism? Are you sure you can reuse a thesis chapter in a journal article? Ever wonder how to respond to reviewer feedback or how to handle supporting information? ASK ACS EDITORS THEMSELVES. Join ACS Editors for a discussion of the basics and ethics of scholarly publishing.

12:30-2:00

Resume Review 101 and Lunch (Food is served)

In today's job market, your resume is often the ONE chance you have to make it to an interview. Is your resume up to snuff? Join the ACS Department of Career Management and Development for an interactive session on strategizing and executing a successful resume. Already, employed? Join us to learn how to keep your resume up-to-date and interview ready.

2:15-3:30

Life Beyond the Lab: Finding the Work/Life Balance

Life beyond graduate school—or even IN graduate school!—involves paying bills, raising a family, working, and much more. How do you balance the needs of your professional life with those of your personal life? Join ACS members, Argonne employees, and ACS Publications for an informal discussion on achieving career goals while maintaining a healthy personal life.

Questions? Email LibraryRelations@acs.org

RSVP at pubs.acs.org/r/acsoc

ACS Publications
MOST TRUSTED. MOST CITED. MOST READ.